Overall, Cash has been a real pleasure in his foster home. He has done amazingly well with the younger children and two other dogs he's sharing his space with. His foster parents don't have any knowledge regarding his exposure to cats, so slow introductions would be required.

He loves attention, sleeping on the couch, and snacks. Apparently salmon snacks are his favorites.

He does have arthritis so stairs would not be ideal for Cash. He loves attention but is also equally happy snoring away in his bed. He does snore loudly, but what bulldog doesn't! Although he would love to spend his day couch surfing, his foster parents don't allow it due to his age and arthritis. With that being said, I don't think it would be ideal behavior to allow in his forever home.

During his vetting, the doctor stated he was shocked Cash is reportedly nine as he doesn't show the typical signs of being a senior bulldog. He is alert, can be active, hears and sees well, and was the hit of the clinic.

He would make an awesome member to anyone's family. If you think Cash would make a great addition to your family, please submit an application!
